She had a deeper passion which led her back to school where she received her Bachelors of Social Work from Union University. She desired to work with women who were underserved and unheard. She had recently completed her application to return to school for her Masters in Social Work in the fall.

Angela loved her family! She praised her husband Robert for his love, support, kindness, and for being her “rock.” She would always celebrate her children, sharing their successes and expressing her joy. She loved her grandchildren dearly, including her granddog Chicago.

“ Angie was a beautiful lady inside and out. She always cared for others and put them before herself. I graduated with her from Union in 2018 and she was a great social worker who always had her heart into her job. She will truly be missed. Prayers for her family, children and grandchildren who she loved and spoke highly of all the time in class.
