“ I love me some Ms. Joyce and PawPaw. I can't miss one without the other. They kept me laughing. Over the years , when I ran into Ms. Joyce, we would have good conversations. I heart goes out to her girls, and her entire family. Prayers

“ Joyce was my best friend from 2nd grade all through high school. We were inseparable, a part of a clique of 3. She and I, laughed and talked constantly. I remember her wit, and willingness to say just what she felt, which generally had me rolling. We went to different states after high school, but the long talks stayed strong until early last month. She admitted that her body was trying to fail her, but even in rehab, her wit remained. Whenever we talked, she showed that as a friend she had love for me, because she would often reminisce about our times growing up like they happened yesterday. Many GOOD memories of happy times that brought her great joy. She was EQUALLY a joy to me, with not a mean bone in her body, always cheerful. She was a strong family person, loving all her siblings, her kids and grandchildren. MY FRIEND, I will miss your loyalty, kindness, laughter and wit. You will never be far from me, forever on my mind and in my ❤️. I have always had love for you Annie Joyce and forever will. RIP

“ My fondest memory of Joyce was when we were roommates, we were low on money and cafe was closed. We had a hot plate in our room (these were 70's) so we cooked white rice but didn't have any butter, Joyce said let's put some cheese whiz in it. It turned the rice yellow and was quite tasty. She will be missed

“ Joyce was my freshmen college roommate at Lane College. We shared clothes, food, classes and secrets. We lost touch through the years but she will forever be a part of some of my happiest memories.
