“ I was saddened to see Mrs. Betty in the Wbbj obituaries! We became friends while she was at Maplewood. I would visit my mom daily and I would always go and visit Ms. Betty. She loved playing Bingo and would win several games each week. My mom couldnot see the board and Ms Betty would tell me to put her next to her and she would help her with the numbers! What a beautiful lady, Ms Betty was. She will be missed by many.

“ Aunt Betty! Aunt Betty! So many memories. Conversations of reassurance and motivation. I know you and Grandma Evelyn plotted to keep Takeema out of daycare. Even though I never let on. I was grateful to both of you for looking out for his best interest. I finally found the Ruby Red colored lipstick. I will always wear it in your memory. Love always Marlo and Takeema.

“ I didn’t have the pleasure of growing up with my aunt because I lived in Michigan. I saw her on holiday, summer breaks, and of course family funerals. My fondest childhood memory of my aunt is when we came to visit and if you don’t know, I have two moms. Both are her sisters. She would always tell me “Gurl Sista ain’t yo mama.” Of course I wouldn’t dare to say anything back to her. My aunt did not play just like the her sisters didn’t. Our relationship began a couple of years ago. We all know aunt Betty will preach a sermon and scold me if I missed church. It became a routine with her. She would call me and say “why aren’t you at church.” I would answer “I went to early service and Sunday School. “ Her response “what was the message and scripture and from there, we were on the phone for almost an hour. I found out recently we share a love for the color purple. Although, royal blue was one of favorite colors as well. I sent her a birthday present and I told her that “I chose my favorite color purple because I didn’t know her favorite color.0 She laughed and said “Bit that’s my favorite color too. I don’t know if she had a chance to open her gift. I will miss our Sunday phone calls. I learned a lot from our conversations. I will miss her dearly.
