“ It's been awhile but not a day goes by that I don't think of you or mention your name. My daughter and I will take turns just bringing up past situations and laughing so hard. Some people say Jeff looks exactly like you but we both share your character. I am a grandmother now and I wish you were here to meet my grandchildren because they both love big trucks just as you did. I can't believe so much time has passed and it still seems unreal that you are gone. You are truly missed and I love you so much.

Sitting at the kitchen table thinking about everyone that has passed on.
Can't help but to think about granddaddy, grandmother & Aunt Laine but most of all I thought about you. You lit up the world with your big smile.*

I have had a rough day today and normally I could come sat with u and tell u all about it. U didn't talk but u always listened while I vent to u and I really miss that. There are days I sat with my daughters and we laugh about things u use to do when u were up and about before becoming ill. I have visited ur grave site a few times since u have been gone. U being gone still doesn't feel real but it's reality....I love u and miss u
